Chair's Message

Chair Ronald I. Taketa

Honolulu's Police Department has not been spared the challenges departments across the country are now confronting, and how personal technology, today's media, and public expectations of responsible police officer conduct, present all of us with a changing environment.

It has been an eventful year for both the Department under the leadership of Chief Louis Kealoha, and the Honolulu Police Commission, which evaluates the performance of Chief. Most important, it has been one of growth and heightened sensitivity to the importance of public confidence in the leadership and management of the Department, and in the officers who interact with our citizens across Honolulu.

As part of this process, both the Chief and the Commission have undergone open and ongoing appraisals of our collective efforts to meet public demands for greater transparency and accountability, while staying within the operational boundaries specific to this Commission.

Civilian oversight of the Police Chief's performance is not unique to Hawaii, and is in fact the prevailing trend for most major metropolitan cities. It is meant to reflect the general population's sentiments regarding the governance of their own police department, and to remove the department from political influences. And while our duly elected officials always enjoy the prerogatives of their office to intervene, I believe the Commission should be allowed to function and evolve within the present framework that has proven to be most beneficial to the public interest.

In analyzing all of the significant events over the past year, I am confident that we continue to have a Police Chief and Police Department that exemplifies professionalism, dedication, and efficiency.

It has been my honor to serve as Chair of Honolulu's Police Commission, and I want to personally thank each of the Commission members for the outstanding teamwork and dedication they have generously contributed to protect and promote both the public interest and the effectiveness of the Department under the leadership of Chief Kealoha.

COMPLAINT REGISTRATION PROCEDURE AND INVESTIGATION

A citizen may register a formal complaint at the Commission office between the hours of 7:45 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. If the complainant is unable to register his/her complaint at the Commission office, the citizen may call the office to make alternate arrangements through the outreach program.

Complaints must be filed within 60 days from the date of the incident to ensure the availability of accurate investigative information. Past experience has shown that waiting more than 60 days may result in unclear recall by witnesses, an inability on the part of the investigators to locate witnesses, or general confusion and distortion of the facts by all parties involved. The Commission, however, may permit the filing of a complaint after the 60-day period for the following reasons: 1) excusable neglect; 2) newly discovered evidence which by reasonable diligence could not have been discovered in time; or 3) any other reason justifying relief from the 60-day limitation.

The aggrieved citizen gives a statement of the incident to an investigator or police reporter. Upon completion of the final typed statement, the citizen has the opportunity to make any corrections. The complainant signs the statement attesting to its accuracy, and the statement is notarized.

A Police Commission investigator (a non-law enforcement, civil service employee) begins the investigation by contacting as many witnesses as possible and gathering all available facts.

Once a case is filed with the Commission office, efforts are made to complete the investigation within 60 days to preserve the timeliness of investigations and any resultant disciplinary action.

This information is compiled in an objective report and presented to the Commission members for review.

Each Police Commissioner carefully reads the report and renders a recommendation to uphold or deny the allegations of the complaint. This is recorded at an Executive Session. A majority opinion, consisting of four or more votes, determines the disposition of each case. If more information is needed or if a majority vote is lacking, the case is deferred.

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE HONOLULU POLICE COMMISSION PUBLIC CONTACT REPORT

During 2014, the Commission authorized the use of the Public Contact Report (PCR), and the reporting procedure was put into effect in June 2014. The PCR was implemented to enhance the documentation of information received from the public not meeting the criteria to initiate a full Honolulu Police Commission (HPC) investigation and the resources expended to assist the public on matters outside the HPC's responsibilities.

It was determined HPC investigators were regularly in contact with the public regarding matters not directly related to the duties and responsibilities of the HPC. Investigators were spending significant time to collect information or evaluating a persons account to determine if an issue was, in fact, within the HPC's scope. Additionally, when an issue was identified to be outside the HPC's scope, time and effort were expended to guide the member of the public to a resolution for their issue. Providing the extra assistance to members of the public has become routine as the HPC staff is committed to providing the best public service possible, even when a matter was determined to outside HPC responsibilities.

With interest to capture the time and effort expended on these types of matters, along with documenting what information was provided, the PCR (Form HPC-27) was implemented. The process involves the investigator completing the form after a non-HPC issue contact by providing appropriate details, describing what assistance was provided, and how the matter was resolved. The completed form is then forwarded to the HPC executive officer for review and held according to established retention rules. The completed forms remain available for HPC staff review as required.

During the period June 1, 2014 through December 31, 2014, 188 PCRs were completed and retained. The completed forms have demonstrated their usefulness by providing background information when multiple contacts with the same person are encountered. Additionally, the PCRs are documenting time and effort expended by investigators outside their direct responsibilities. The HPC plans to continue the use of the PCR and will consider further enhancement by uploading information collected on the PCR electronically to enable quick and thorough searches.

State of Hawaii Police Commissioner's Conference
"Executive Leadership through Education"
April 24-25, 2014
Big Island of Hawaii
Waikoloa Beach Marriott

The Honolulu Police Commission was represented at the 2014 Annual State of Hawaii Police Commissioners' Conference held on the Big Island of Hawaii by Vice Chair Cha M. K. Thompson, Commissioners Eddie Flores, Helen H. Hamada, Luella T. Costales, and Executive Officer Gregory J. Gilmartin. In addition to the commissioners from Honolulu, commissioners from Hawaii, Maui, and Kauai, and the chiefs of police and members of their staff from each of the four Hawaii police departments were in attendance.

The theme and title of the conference, as selected by the Hawaii Police Commission, was "Executive Leadership through Education." The presentations, discussion, and working groups during the conference focused on issues and challenges facing each commission. Although each of the four police commissions functions independently from the other, it is apparent many of the same challenges face each commission. This venue continues to provide avenue for the commissions and the police officials to share expertise and experiences in order to aid each in addressing future issues.

Guest speakers for the 2014 conference included Hawaii County Mayor William Kenoi and Hawai'i County Corporation Counsel Lincoln Ashida. Additionally, numerous members of the Hawaii County Police Department spoke regarding their duties and expertise.

The State of Hawaii Police Commissioners' Conference in 2015 will be hosted by the Honolulu Police Commission in Waikiki. The interest of all participants expressed these conferences continue as the opportunities to learn and address emerging issues remains essential to address the complexity of civilian oversight of law enforcement.

Hawaii State Law Enforcement Officials Association
61st Annual Conference
August 24-25, 2014
Kapalua, Hawaii

The Honolulu Police Commission was represented by Commissioners Max J. Sword, Luella T. Costales, Executive Officer Gregory J. Gilmartin, and Investigator Patrick G. Caldwell at the Hawaii State Law Enforcement Officials Association 61st Annual Conference held at the Ritz Carlton Kapalua.

This conference provided an opportunity for all those associated with law enforcement throughout the entire state to share discussion and receive presentations relative to modern law enforcement. The unity among all agencies resulting from this annual conference has become critical considering the significant cultural and society changes each agency is encountering.

The conference was hosted by the Maui County Police Department. Presentation topics included the process recently utilized by the Maui County Police Commission in the selection of a new police chief, dealing with members of the public suffering from mental health problems, and the increasing threat of synthetic drugs throughout the state.

20th Annual Conference
National Association for Civilian Oversight of Law Enforcement
“Building Community, Broadening Oversight”
Kansas City, Missouri
September 14-18, 2014

The Honolulu Police Commission (HPC) was represented by Commissioners Helen H. Hamada Luella T. Costales, and Executive Officer Gregory J. Gilmartin at the 2014 National Association for Civilian Oversight of Law Enforcement Conference held in Kansas City, Missouri. The theme of the conference was “Building Community, Broadening Oversight.” Members of the HPC routinely attend this annual conference as it has proven to provide insight regarding developments, trends, and solutions in the area civilian oversight of law enforcement. The 2014 conference was no different in that the attendees brought back home to Honolulu new perspectives regarding various topics such as officer involved domestic violence and the use of body cameras by officers.

The keynote speaker at the conference was Ms. Maddy deLone, Executive Director, Innocence Project. Ms. deLone’s presentation highlighted her career and perspectives of the importance, responsibilities, and accountability of those involved in civilian oversight of law enforcement.

Over 350 attendees from various states and countries participated in the conference. Even though all attendees came from different jurisdictions and no model of civilian law enforcement oversight is identical, the uniqueness each entity provided for valuable discussion of best practices.

The HPC plans to continue to be an active participant in future National Association of Civilian Oversight of Law Enforcement conferences and bring to Honolulu the best practices identified for review and consideration. The next conference is scheduled for September 2015 in California.
